BOARD AUTHORIZES EXPLORATION
OF STRATEGIC OPTIONS FOR UTILITY

TOPEKA, Kansas, May 18, 2000 (7:30 a.m. CDT) -- Western Resources announced today that its board of directors authorized management to explore a variety of strategic alternatives for its electric utility operations which consist of KPL and KGE.

Those options include seeking a merger partner for the utility operations, forming a strategic alliance with other companies, partnering with another electric or natural gas utility or the possible sale of the utility operations.

The company said it has retained Salomon Smith Barney and Chase Securities to assist in this process.

"This is the next logical step in our strategy to separate the regulated and unregulated assets of Western Resources, which was announced in March," said David C. Wittig, Western Resources chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer.

"We understand that growth is essential to be successful in a deregulated electric environment. That has been our view for some time -- and remains our view today. Our electric operations, while solid, are becoming comparatively smaller as the industry consolidates. We look forward to partnering with another energy company that offers compatibility, growth and opportunity for our shareholders, customers and employees," Wittig said.

Wittig said that the separation strategy will continue whereby the unregulated assets of Western Resources, including investments in the monitored services segment comprised of Protection One, Protection One Europe, Paradigm Direct and Guardian International; ONEOK; unregulated generation; and other investments, will be separated and renamed Westar Capital.

"Ultimately, this decision is based upon our long held view that the electric business must be significantly larger in order to prosper in a deregulated environment," said Wittig. "We need to prepare for coming deregulation and the competition that will inevitably come to Kansas, and with it, rate equalization. While we have extremely valuable assets, particularly on the generation side, these assets need to be part of a larger business. In addition, our ability to serve our employees, customers, and the communities in which we operate will be enhanced if we initiate this process."

Western Resources (NYSE: WR) is a consumer services company with interests in monitored services and energy. The company has total assets of more than $8 billion, including security company holdings through ownership of Protection One (NYSE: POI), which has more than 1.4 million security customers in 48 states. Its utilities, KPL and KGE, provide electric service to approximately 634,000 customers in Kansas. Through its ownership in ONEOK, Inc. (NYSE: OKE), a Tulsa-based natural gas company, Western Resources has a 45 percent interest in the ninth largest natural gas distribution company in the nation, serving more than 1.4 million customers.
